Requirements and Conditions

- Upon completion of the following steps, ABA will issue the Elite Lifetime Warranty
- Submit all appropriate warranty forms
- Submit all test results when the installation is complete
- Submit floor plans for the job site
- Submit the invoices from the distributor supplying ABA Cable and the connectivity manufacturer
- The warranty will be in effect the date it is issued

The Certified Installer will be the end user's main contact for the duration of the warranty. Any installation changes or alterations made without ABA's consent will make the warranty null and void.

Product Failure

In the event of product failure, the end user will contact the Certified Installer that completed the work. The Certified Installer will determine the cause of failure and grant ABA the opportunity to investigate the failure.

If it is determined that any of ABA's products have failed, ABA will replace our product and cover labor costs to bring the channel back to a standard performance level.

Labor rates to be established based on original installer's invoiced rate, per run, at the time of the original project installation.

ABA will not be responsible for any incidental costs of business downtime due to product failure.
